Dear Eric:

Double congratulations are in order. This, I know, is the week of your 80th birthday and to you the most sincere best wishes.

Again, many thanks for the excellent presentation you gave at the meeting last Saturday. The material was fascinating and the delivery flawless.

With regard to the Nominating Committee I have no specific individuals in mind for Council. There are, however, some principles that I would hope your Committee will consider. The Council in its meetings has already requested that the Nominating Committee evaluate attendance records and the general record of Councillors in behalf of ANS. Next, obviously important to me is keeping in mind securing some younger councillors and particularly looking for potential officer and presidential material.

Finally, it seems to me that the balance of academics vs. others on the Council is about right. I do know that Jack Leggett has a candidate in mind and I will ask him to drop you a note or telephone you promptly.

With regard to the 1792 Washington piece, I have not forgotten your interest and should I decide to make any move with this collection will be in touch with you long before I do anything else.

Again all best wishes.

Yours sincerely,

R. Henry Norweb, Jr.
